Abstract. The abstract must summarise the purpose, method, main results and principal conclusion of the paper in 70-150 words. Use 9-point type and indent the abstract 1.0 cm from both the left and right margins. Leave two blank 10-point lines before and after the abstract. This document already uses the required format.
Keywords: List the main keywords for indexing and discovery in this section.

How to use this template

Replace the instruction text with your own manuscript. Keep the section numbers, captions, citation style and basic formatting. Use clear British English throughout the paper.

Length: full research articles should not exceed 20 pages, including figures, tables, references and appendices. Short notes, technical reports and viewpoints should not exceed six pages.

1 Introduction

Write 2–4 focused paragraphs. A reader should understand the problem, its importance and your contribution before reaching the next section.

- State the research problem clearly.
- Explain why the problem matters.
- Identify the gap in previous work.
- State your main contribution.
- Briefly describe how the paper is organised.

2 Methodology

Explain what you did in enough detail for another researcher to reproduce the work. Avoid textbook explanations of standard techniques.

2.1 Data, materials or problem instances

Describe the data, materials, benchmarks, instances or case study used in the research. Include sources, selection criteria and any preprocessing.

2.2 Algorithm, model or procedure

Describe the method, algorithm, experiment or analytical procedure. Include relevant parameters, assumptions, software, hardware and implementation details.

2.3 Evaluation criteria

Explain how performance, accuracy, quality or significance was measured. Mention baselines, comparison methods and statistical tests when relevant.

3 Results and Discussion

Present the main findings in a logical order. Use tables or figures only when they make the result easier to understand.

- Report the most important results first.
- Refer to every table and figure in the text.
- Explain what each result means.
- Compare your results with baselines or previous studies.
- Mention limitations or unexpected behaviour.

4 Conclusions

Summarise the main finding, the scientific contribution and the practical or theoretical implication. Do not introduce new data in the conclusion.

End with one or two realistic future-work directions, not a long list of possibilities.

5 Formatting rules

Element	Simple rule
Language	Use clear British English. Follow The Concise Oxford Dictionary where in doubt.
Headings	Use Arabic numbering: 1, 1.1, 1.1.1. Do not use Roman numerals.
Figures	Use high-resolution images. Place the caption below the figure. Example: Fig. 1. System architecture
Tables	Place the caption above the table. Keep tables simple and readable.
Equations	Centre displayed equations and number only those cited in the text.
Formal statements	Number lemmas, propositions and theorems consecutively, starting with 1.
Code	Use a monospaced font such as Courier for source code or commands.
Footnotes	Use footnotes sparingly. Place them at the bottom of the page.

Table 1. Example of a simple table caption

Measure	Value	Meaning
Accuracy	[insert value]	[explain briefly]
Time	[insert value]	[explain briefly]

Fig. 1. Example of a short figure caption

Equation example

$$x + y = z . \tag{1}$$

6 Citations and references

Use APA author–date citation style. Every source cited in the text must appear in the reference list, and every reference-list entry must be cited in the text.

Use	Example
One author	(Smith, 2020)
Two authors	(Smith & Jones, 2020)
Three or more authors	(Smith et al., 2020)
Several sources	(Smith, 2020; Johnson, 2019)
Direct quotation	(Smith, 2020, p. 15)

References

Replace this paragraph with the final reference list. Use APA format and hanging indentation. Include only works cited in the manuscript.

Final submission checklist

- The abstract is 70–150 words.
- Keywords are included.
- All tables, figures and equations are cited in the text.
- Citations and references match.
- The manuscript has no page numbers or running heads.
- The file is submitted as a Word document.
